El Cerrito's big auction

EL CERRITO — Police Chief Patrick Reeve's old 1974 Plymouth sedan is one of four motor vehicles up for sale in the Police and Finance Department's annual public auction of surplus city property and unclaimed found goods.

The auction will begin at 10 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 10 in the Public Safety Building parking lot at 10900 San Pablo Ave., and will run until everything is gone, according to auctioneer Police Lt. Lee Blevins.

Two 1972 pickup trucks, a 1972 Dodge sedan, a piano, sporting goods and more than two-dozen bicycles also will be auctioned off, along with clothing, jewelry, stereo equipment, cameras, five green leather chairs, various lengths of fire hose and more.

The city's municipal code requires that the police department hold unclaimed property for six months prior to disposal. All of the money raised by the auctions is deposited in the city's general fund.

Last year's auction netted the city more than $4,000, and Blevins expects the coming one to rake in considerably more than that due to the volume and value of the items. Most of the more than 30 bicycles available — including 16 10-speeds — range from fair to good condition. The fact that the bicyles did not have serial numbers when discovered leads Blevins to conclude that they were stolen outside the city.

"I was surprised and also disappointed to learn that we are the only agency in West County that requires the licensing of bicycles," he said. "It's surprising because bicycle thefts are such a huge problem and the price of bicycles is so high."

Pay proposal panned

Parents and union object to suggested raise

By BARBARA ERICKSON

A proposal to give 75 percent of this summer's budget windfall to Richmond Unified employees has come under attack by parents, who say the money should go into programs, and from a union leader, who says it is too restrictive.

"It backs people into a corner," said United Teachers of Richmond director Ernie Ciarrocchi last week, "and that's not good for either side."

Ciarrocchi was commenting on the school board's offer of the week before,which proposed giving 75 percent of the increase from new state education funding to salaries and benefits. The remainder would go to restoring programs cut over the past two years.

Out of an increase of $3.4 million this year, that would give teachers and other employees a 3 percent raise, according to district calculations.

During a public hearing on the proposal parents also opposed the formula, but for different reasons.

Cynthia Wilkerson of the PTA said parents, school officials and community members lobbied for more funds this past year on the basis of program needs, assailing the Legislature with stories of lost athletic budgets and shorter days at the secondary level.

"For us to give three quarters of the money to salaries," Wilkerson said, "is giving us the shaft. Anything less than 50-50 is criminal."

She said she would prefer to put money on lengthening the school day at the intermediate level.

Parent Gloria Morrison said the offer would make the district look bad next year when Richmond Unified is asking for funds from Sacramento. A top priority, she said, is to restore the sixth period in all secondary grades.

(The board restored the sixth period in junior high school this year, after cutting it from 7th, 8th, 11th and 12th

Elections '83

The EC races

By GORDON RADDUE

EL CERRITO — There will be a race after all for the two four-year City Council seats on Nov. 8 ballot.

Chuck Lewis, five-year member of the Planning Commission and twice its chairman, threw his hat in the ring Friday to oppose incumbent James E. Allen, Jr., and fellow Planning Commissioner Bob Bacon.

They'll be running for the two incumbent seats currently occupied by Allen and Margaret Collins, who announced Thursday she will not be a candidate for either her seat or the two-year term to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Councilman Richard Spellmann.

The filing deadline for the special election to complete Spellmann's shorter term was reached Thursday with computer technologist Gregg Howe and schoolteacher Steve G.

When does 'all the news' become too much news?

By FRANCES THOMAS

ALBANY — The proliferation of newspaper racks at street corners and bus stops has city officials trying to devise a way to keep both the news and the traffic flowing freely.

The problems is a thorny one, city officials say, since newspapers have a constitutional right to disseminate and receive news. But the public also is entitled to safe and open sidewalks.

Although no one knows exactly how many news racks there are, one city official said news racks "are growing like they were being watered," slowing pedestrian traffic and creating a eyesore in some places.

Farewell to Chief Richards:

Fired-up for retirement

By JIM GRODNIK

EL CERRITO — Wearing the briefest of swim suits, and sawing wood in the afternoon sun, a bronzed and well-muscled George Richards looked like anything a man who had just retired.

After 27 years with the El Cerrito Fire Department, former battalion chief left the department Aug. 21, but evidence of his profession is all around his Liberty Street home.

George Richards

In one corner of the garage, a brass fire pole leads to the the second floor of the house. An old fireplug squats in the back yard, its white paint peeling and cracking with age. On a coffee table in the living room is a Jim Beam decanter modeled after a chief's car.

Richards, 54, is a native of Berkeley. He went to Berkeley High School, joined the army at 17, and spent three years in the service, two of them in Korea. When he got out he recalled, "My dad said not to be a carpenter, so I became one."

Then, as in baseball, it was three strikes and he was out. Three different labor disputes kept him from working. So, with a wife, Carolyn, and infant daughter, Candy, to support, he looked for something steady.

He found it at the El Cerrito Fire Department — 27 years worth.

Richards has three reasons for retiring at age 54 from a job he enjoyed:

One is because of the changes in the fire department caused by the ever-present shadow of Proposition 13.

A second reason for Richards' retirement is economic. Given the current pension mechanism, Richards said it wouldn't be practical for him to keep working.

And finally, responding to so many rescue calls and seeing the ill and dying people his own age has given Richards a glimpse of his own mortality.

Richards said cutbacks resulting from the passage of Proposition 13 have made the firefigher's life more difficult. He recalled how quickly things changed.

He said Tom Barry, the El Cerrito chief before the passage of Proposition 13, "just ordered everything: explosives to blow down walls, mini-pumpers, a $120,000 piece of equipment too big to use. He thought he was chief in a city like San Francisco.

"When 13 came along there was no more money."

At one time, the El Cerrito department never crossed its own city borders, but the economic crunch means it is now called on to respond to fires in Richmond, El Sobrante and San Pablo.

"The stress is tremendous," Richards said.

He knows every street and hydrant in El Cerrito. Now, he said, firefighers operate with maps. "You jump in the engine flipping pages trying to find out where the hell you're going to go."

He acknowledges the need for change, even if he

Why city needs paramedics

By RUTH GANONG
Mayor

ALBANY — Deciding whether Albany should extend our emergency medical program to include the use of paramedics in extreme emergencies was one of the more difficult decisions that the City Council has had to make. Our current service is excellent as far as it goes; but we were told that by including paramedics, we increased the odds for recovery for 4 to 5 percent of the 600 people needing emergency help each year in Albany. That means 24 to 30 people a year would have a better chance at recovery.

The benefits of a paramedic program for the citizens of Albany were explained in detail by officials of Alameda County and the director of emergency services, Captain Jack Rosano of the Berkeley Fire Department. At a public workshop on August 29, prior to a regular Albany City Council meeting, Dr. David Pointer explained that the crucial time in patients whose hearts have stopped is between 6 and 12 minutes. After that time, there is little chance of recovery because of lack of oxygen to the brain.

Paramedics are specifically trained to handle this kind grade last year.)

Ciarrocchi said the union would prefer the district to offer a raise of a specific percentage. To split between salaries and program, he said, makes union members uncomfortable.

"We feel the people we represent are the program," he said.

He also noted that the wages of Richmond Unified teachers rank near the bottom of the state's 20 largest districts.

Parent Cate Burkhardt agreed that teachers are crucial to the schools.

"We are losing many of our good teachers to industry because of low pay," she said. "I hope we can find a good balance between program and salary."

Ciarrocchi said before the meeting that the union and district representatives had spent all day in negotiations and "made progress." The UTR, he said, asked for financial information from the district, and both sides will meet again soon.

But the board has to adopt the final budget by tonight, before both sides reach agreement on employee salaries. This means that the funds in question will remain in the undistributed reserve until a decision is made.

According to the proposed formula, employees would get about $2.56 million of the windfall. With a rise of $1.6 million in benefit costs, this leaves about $1.4 million for salaries and $854,848 for programs.

The decision to restore the sixth period in junior high will cost $552,000, leaving $302,848 for additional restorations.

Board member Frank Calton suggested spending additional funds on tutors or aides to give additional help in low-achieving elementary schools and all junior high schools. This could be more helpful than lengthening the day, he said.

Calton asked the staff to report back on his suggestion.

In other business, the board appointed Debbie La Salle as assistant superintendent for elementary education. La Salle has been acting director of that department since last spring, when she took over from Robert Griffin.

The post was not available for a full-time appointment, however, because the former director, Don Dyer, was on leave. When Dyer resigned for health reasons the district advertised for the post.

E.C. firefighter Richards retires

doesn't like it. "Total consolidation (of the county fire departments) has got to come because of the money problem. It's the only solution."

Cutbacks can go to extremes, Richards said. He recalled that at one time the city cut the appropriation for flags out of the budget. A woman whose son had been killed in Vietnam donated a flag to Station 12 on the Arlington.

"That's how ridiculous it's gotten. It's a shame." he said.

Personal economics played a part in Richards' decision to retire. He estimates that if he were to continue working, it would be like working for half pay.

If he kept working, he would have to continue contributing $200 a month until he reached 60, even though he already qualifies for the maximum benefit. Moreover, the pension money has already been taxed. Should he keep working he would have to continue paying taxes on his $2,-650 a month salary.

Richards said that over the years he has responded to many rescue calls unrelated to fire — calls to help people who are injured or sick. "I see so many of those people are in my own age bracket. I better enjoy myself a little," he said.

Asked when he felt fear around fires, Richards responded without hesitation, "Anytime someone yelled, 'There's a child in there.' The life factor is the disturbing factor."

He recalled that at Sharkey's, a small barber shop, firefighters once extinguished a blaze without being aware that anyone lived in the back.

"I went in with the flashlight and there was this body in the bathtub. He was dead," Richards said.

Richards' only injury was a burned hand sustained in a fire at Dolan Lumberyard, which, he said, was the largest fire he ever fought. Fire swept over an engine.

"I ran over to help with the hose. The radiant heat was unbelievable, the hand all blistered up."

Richard's future includes a 1931 Model A Ford that he's never gotten around to working on. The bathroom tile needs finishing. The seven bedrooms that he's added on to the house need work. "I enjoy a big house," he said.

And the brass pole needs to be shined and installed to meet the fire code. The pole came from Station 1, site of the Public Safety building at Manila and San Pablo streets.

Richards rescued it. "Someone was going to cut it up in pieces and make a brass rail for a bar out of it," he said.

A rash of indecent exposu

By FRANCES THOMAS

ALBANY — Police are investigating a rash of indecent exposure incidents.

The latest case occurred Aug. 23 when a man driving a blue car stopped in front of two 10-year-old girls and asked them for directions. As one child approached the car, near Peralta and Solano Avenues, she saw the man was nude and masturbating.

She walked away from the car, and the man drove off. This is the second recent incident in which a man has exposed himself in front of young girls. The first occurred Aug. 11 near Masonic and Portland Avenues. In each case the suspect drove a car, worn no clothes and masturbated during the encounter.

Detective Greg Bone said the same man might be responsible for both incidents. The two girls accosted Aug. 23 said the man was white, had blue eyes and was about 30-years-old.

The police are also looking for a man who h himself to four women during the past two mon each of these encounters the man walked up to t exposed himself and then walked by watching he All of these incidents have occurred on or near enue, Bone said, and all the victims have b adults.

The second flasher is a 30-year-old white ma feet 9 inches tall. He weighs about 190 pounds mustache.

Bone said the same man probably is not for accosting both the young children and women.

Indecent exposure is a misdemeanor, but sex offender status is a suspect is caught and Bone said.

The City Council recently asked the Planning Commission and city staff to draft an ordinance which could limit the number or locations of racks.

Council member Henry Kruse, Jr. said, "I personally object to these things. I think we should control it. The whole idea of first amendment rights for a vending machine bothers me."

Jerome Blank, a realtor and former Albany mayor, told the council that the number of news racks in front of Town Centre on Solano Avenue, which he owns, is growing steadily and without his permission or that of the city.

"When I started writing this letter last week, there were 13 stands cluttering up the sidewalk," Blank wrote on Aug. 22. "Today I discovered there are 14 stands and by the time the council acts to correct this unsightly problem there will probably be 15 or more."

Currently newspaper distributors do not have to apply for a city permit before placing a rack.

Customers can buy a variety of journals from these racks, including The New York Times, Wall Street Journal, several local newspapers and two sex tabloids.

Robert S. Guletz, the director of public works, said the city had not gotten many complaints about the sex tabloids. But he said that city could consider limiting the type of papers allowed in racks.

"We will take a careful look at whether we want to or can restrain papers that are not of a news nature," he said. "The reason that first amendment rights are granted to news racks is so they can provide news to people in a timely fashion. But you could argue that monthly tabloids could be sold inside stores."

Robert J. Zweben, the city attorney, said the council must be careful to adopt an ordinance that does not favor one type of publication over another.

"I think many people think that this is a real encroachment and has many first amendment problems," he told the council. "If you regulate by type you could run into anti-trust problems. This is something you should look at cautiously because this is a big first amendment issue."

Guletz said it would be several months before a draft of the proposed ordinance would be given to the council.

of emergency. Our firefighters with emergency medical training (EMT) administer extremely effective first aid and cardiopulmonary treatment, but Dr. Pointer said that a firefighter with only EMT training would be unable to give the special treatment that can be given by the paramedics.

A major concern of our city officials is that our present service be maintained. We were assured by Captain Rosano that our firefighters would be the first to answer emergency calls, and that the whole system is dependent on the effectiveness of the firefighters. We will keep our present system. Our firefighters will handle most cases; but, in the specific cardiac cases requiring special treatment, our program would be enhanced by the help of the paramedics.

Ben Matthews, administrator, Emergency Medical Service, Alameda county Health Care Services, showed statistics demonstrating that Albany has one of the older populations of the county; 15 percent of our citizens are 65 years or older. We asked, if by adding the paramedic service, we would delay getting the patient to the emergency hospital centers. We were assured by Mr. Matthews that this need not happen. Paramedics can start life-sustaining treatment within a minute of arrival on the scene and continue it on the ride to the hospital.

Several citizens expressed concern that the expense of the program (approximately $8.56 per household per year) was a high price to pay for the program. I must say that several of us recently had the experience of losing a neighbor who possibly might have been saved by paramedic treatment. Considering the fact that 12-15 of our friends and fellow citizens might have their lives saved by this service, we felt that the $8.56 per household was worth it.

Captain Rosano, who resides in Albany, addressed the Council as an Albany resident. He emphasized that the paramedics are in a broad sense an extension of the emergency room. They can provide emergency service that is not now done until a person reaches the hospital. He indicated that Albany has a good program and they have EMT's that are good. By adding paramedics to the program, it can be made into a very enviable system for everyone.

The paramedic program was presented to the Alameda County as costing up to $10 per ho Eighty-two percent of the voters in Albany vote of it. The Council agrees with the majority of and has decided to implement the program.

Hummel figurines: porcelain images of childhood

ocal collector 'fell in love' with her hobby

By PAULINE METZA

ust 10 years ago, Sirkka Flana Ramey's husband, d, bought her four Hummel figurines. "Something thought I would enjoy," said Ramey, a Richmond

"fell in love with them" and, before she knew it, a collector.

ther local collector is Blanche Ziegler of El Cer- o has about 23 of the dolls in her collection. She interested in them about 45 years ago when her gave her one.

forgot about the doll during the World War II until a close friend sent her one from Germany. She n collecting Hummels ever since.

mey now has about 50 of the figurines that she n a special cabinet. The children are depicted danc- ing under umbrellas, playing instruments, mailing skiing in Alpine costumes, sharing confidences, and d in other pursuits of childhood.

e fine porcelain figurines, prized possessions among llectors, have been manufactured by the W. Goebel ry in Rodental, West Germany for 48 years. They ade of porcelain, and individually hand-painted by craftsmen.

are of children, originating from paintings by Berta who was born in Bavaria in 1909 and entered the as a nun in the Order of St. Francis in 1931.

ven years ago, collectors established the Goebel tors Club which is headquartered in Tarrytown, nd which sponsors an essay contest based on a differ- me each year.

mey is a member of the club, and was one of 30 runner-up winners from around the country in this year's sixth annual contest which was based on the theme, "Which M.I. Hummel figurine best characterizes you?"

Ramey chose the figurine of "Spring Dance" in her collection which shows two little girls joyfully dancing together. Her winning poem said in part, "Each of my precious Hummels, every smiling face, holds for me a memory, an incident, a place," and continues with:

The smiling faces of the little girls with dancing feet and bouncing curls reminds me of my youth long gone when I could dance 'til almost dawn. Now I am older but life is still sweet. I have spring in my heart and dancing feet. There will always be a part of myself while "Spring Dance" Hummel adorns my shelf.

Her prize was a Hummel figurine valued at $100, a boy reading a large newspaper and titled "Latest News." Last year, she also was a runner-up winner for her area when she received a Goeble figurine but not a Hummel.

She attends a Hummel seminar every year in San Mateo sponsored by Henri's Gift Shop, one of the stores that carry Hummels and other Goebel figurines.

Almost every one of Ramey's Hummels carries with it a story or an incident to remember.

It's either an anniversary, she said, windfall winnings at one of the casinos used to buy one of the figurines, or a remembrance of travels. The only country where she couldn't find a Hummel, Ramey said, was China, which she and her husband visited recently.

The Rameys are both retired although she continues to work several hours a week for the Galaxy Travel Agency in Oakland. They have four children and eight grandchildren "who love the dolls," said Sirkka Ramey, but "they also know 'hands off'."

dog sniffed about then rushed to the west corner of the lot, where a truck and er was sitting on .

hen Birch followed the he said he spotted a burning in the trailer, two men working inside. A large lab beaker and other lab gear was in full view.

The chemicals and pungent odor caused Birch to hold the men while vice officers were called. A subsequent search warrant revealed a working lab and what police believe to be methamphetamine.

Booked were Patrick Akena, 29, of 1449 Portland St., Albany; and Dean M. Gibson, 24, of 3002 Alta Mira, Richmond.

At one point, Birch said Akena asked to be excused while he turned off the lab which was still "cooking."

The space for the trailer the alleged drug lab was contained in was rented from the trucking firm, which had no apparent knowledge of the operation, police said.

Seeking CCC'ers

During 1983, The National Association of Civilian Conservation Corps Alumni (NACCCA) is celebrating the 50th Anniversary of the Establishment of the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC).

The NACCCA is trying to locate about two million former members and persons who were connected or affiliated with the CCC during the 1930's and 1940's. It is a known fact that many of these persons reside in California.

I am sure that many of your readers have often wondered what became of the CCC. You can tell them the CCC lives again in the NACCCA. It is a young and growing organization with chapters in many of the states throughout the nation, and one of its major objectives is to have the CCC reactivated.

A commemorative CCC Postage stamp has been available for purchase since April, 1983.

Anyone interested in the organization can write to NACCCA, Loehmann's Plaza, 7245 Arlington Blvd., Suite 318, Falls Church, Virginia, 22042, for further information and literature.

A happy reader

It was a pleasure to read the article about our After School Program in the paper (Aug. 31). I have high regard for your follow through to print our story with writer Beth Mende. She was prompt and courteous taking the interview information and staff photographer Karen Preuss was helpful in setting up an appropriate picture.

Thank you for printing the local information I give you for our program. It is a comfort to know there is a community paper I can rely on to honor my requests. Your local paper is the only paper I read cover to cover because I am interested mainly in the local happenings around.

Sincerely yours,

County speeds up jail search

By DON McCORMACK

The Board of Supervisors, expressing doubts recently about building a jail in the Martinez area, delayed a decision to Sept. 15 and ordered their staff to speed up a search for new locations.

Supervisor Sunne McPeak joined Supervisor Nancy Fahden in opposing the Blum Road site.

Blum Road is located just outside Martinez, near the intersection of Highway 4 and Interstate 680. Neighbors strongly protested when the site was identified.

Fahden recently suggested using 20 acres on the Martinez waterfront, east of Interstate 680.

But a staff investigation, detailed at the meeting, disclosed that the site was composed mainly of mud. This would require the contractor to erect the building on piles and install expensive drainage — work that will add $2.3 million to the bill.

Also, the land is located next to a hazardous waste disposal site. The county would have to get permission from the state Department of Health. In addition, permits might have to be gotten from several other agencies, including the Bay Conservation and Development Commission, the staff said.

The land is located a short distance from Suisun Bay, a major wildlife area.

"I don't think either site will be usuable," said McPeak.

The county wants to act by Sept. 15 to secure state bond money to help with the construction.

Contra Costa County opened a large, high security jail in 1981 in downtown Martinez. The facility has become overcrowded. Supervisors are now considering a jail that would house 500 more prisoners.

Another site mentioned for the jail is the Cummings Skyway near Interstate 80, about halfway between Crockett and Rodeo. The staff said, however, that building on the hills there would greatly increase the cost.

The wonderful men of summer

f you were going to serve dinner to 800 people for a affair in a castle, what would you serve? How would plan it? How would you serve it?

Perhaps you might look up a friendly and gracious man named Henry Gegenbauer, whose headquarre in Sindelfingen, Germany, just outside of Stuttgart. is in his mid-thirties, but his background and experi- in the culinary arts and restaurant occupations are mpressive. Apprenticeship, training and managing ments in Europe as well as in the U.S. since his teen easily qualify him as an all-around expert in handling affairs.

As the closing event of the seminars we attended as a r in Europe this summer, we were all excited about ala scheduled at Ludwigsburg Palace in the heart of wabian provinces. Hosted by the governor of Badenrtemburg, it was a formal affair held in the centuries-old which is surrounded by acres of colorful gardens.

Come along with me

The sun had not yet set as the guests assembled in the courtyard to hear a smartly uniformed band in con- Then after the gracious welcome extended by the gov- himself, guests were invited to tour parts of the pal- d enjoy the views of the gardens and the fountains the terrace.

The tables lining the long observatory which served as ning room for ths night's festivities were set in crisp with wines and platters of appetizers. As assortment rwegian salmon with dill sauce, smoked filets of Black trout with horseradish, smoked ham, a liver mousse, matoes stuffed with veal pate, and crunchy rolls with butter was waiting at each place setting.

Then, whenever diners were ready to proceed with the they went to one of several buffet tables laden with , salads, cheeses and fruits, to sample at least a bit of since sensibly limited choices were plainly not possi-

Prime Ribs (flown fresh from Scotland), roasted a medium pink, smoked pork spareribs, baked leg of and steamed ox tongue with fresh horseradish could ompanied by baby carrots, tiny red beets and peas, eamed potatoes with herbs. Would that be enough? e!

There were greens, cucumbers and tomatoes, cabbage adish salads, spinach salad, and Waldorf salad. There shiny green peppers with sliced onions in oil and vin- marinated boiled beef — julienne cut — and a Hawai- medley of chicken, pineapple and assorted tropical Cheeses of many colors with fresh red grapes as sh set off the cold food offerings which featured bas- of fresh strawberries, apricots, bananas, apples and

And then, to end the fabulous repast, dessert could be n from Black Forst Cake with cherries, a fresh fruit ote with Kirsh, and a custard creme.

All this and no kitchen

And how did Henry Gegenbauer arrange all this for 800 people without a kitchen in the palace? For a man who manages four convention halls, one sport stadium, a large hotel and an elegant restaurant, and supervises 1,000 meals daily for the huge IBM plant in Sindelfingen, it was all in a day's work.

With a staff of 60 for this event and several days' work in his kitchens, three special cars to carry cold foods, three for hot foods and two trucks for furniture and linens, he created a golden memory for the international group that gathered there that night of the Gala at Ludwigsburg.

Later, at his elegant restaurant in Boblingen where my family and I were entertained to a sumptuous lunch and where I toured the gleaming stainless steel kitchen (with its tanks of fresh fish!), Henry spoke nostalgically of his years here in the U.S. Having worked at the famous Luchow's in New York as well as at the Washington D.C. Hilton (just to name two), he credits his high standards for quality to his European training but his organizational and management skills to the excellent experience he acquired here in the States. "The Americans really know how to get things done quickly and in a big way. There's just nothing like the American approach to organization," he said.

So you see, the next time you plan a dinner for eight or 800, don't panic. Use Henry's menu (or parts of it) and remember that he said we helped him learn to plan it!

Another fascinating man

His hair is silver, but he is still a handsome young man — maybe in his forties. And, as he busied himself, moving deftly behind the gleaming bar, his actions almost choreographed in graceful movements, it was apparent that he was not just another bartender. That observation was immediately verified as the hotel manager pointed to his picture on the cover of a current slick magazine which was propped up on the mirrored wall behind. We were watching Franz Brandl, perhaps Germany's most famous Barmaster, at work.

Brandl is another one of those talented men whose varied experiences in the world of restaurants and cuisine give him that added edge of distinction. Barmasters in Europe must pass very rigorous and elaborate examinations and "residencies" in order to be accredited. Because of his expertise, Brandl has become a consultant to many of the hotel training schools.

We were lucky to be there that night as he showed us the third printing of his book — which took him three years to compile. It was designed to met the needs of the training schools and has been a consistent best seller as well.

Even if I can't read German (I have to depend on ole Harry to translate the good parts), the book he so generously inscribed for us is a beauty to look at. The photographs are stunning in their simplicity and elegance. The glassware and the colors of the liquids so beautifully illustrate the text. He doesn't give just recipes for drinks, but he also explains and researches ingredients, customs and equipment. And throughout he offers his interpretations of bar-room philosophy.

When I asked him about any drinks he himself has created, he proceeded to build one for me he designed especially for "Aubergine" (three stars) in Munich in honor of the first Bavarian King. Had I been a more sophisticated drinker, I'm sure he would have set up his other 11 originals for me to sample. As it was, he fixed his fabulous "Max Joseph" which I nursed and savored for a good part of our conversation, knowing that my capacity is very limited.

It was actually delicious although I know that's not the proper way to describe an alcoholic beverage. Had I not exercised great control, however, I could have had many more to perhaps disastrous ends. Try it yourself and enjoy a very special champagne cocktail.

The Max Joseph

2 dashes Orange bitters
20 gms. (about ⅔ oz.) calvados
10 gms. (about ½ oz.) white port
10 gms. (about ⅓ oz.) apricot brandy
Champagne

Place all ingredients except the champagne in a mixing glass with ice cubes and stir briskly. Strain into a cocktail glass and fill with champagne. Twist and add an orange slice and a brandied cherry. Prosit!

2 T. lemon juice
1 clove garlic, minced

In medium bowl, combine peanut butter, marmalade, water, soy sauce, lemon juice and garlic. Stir to mix well.

COCONUT PEANUT BARBECUE SAUCE
(Makes 1⅔ cup sauce)

1 cup boiling water
1 cup flaked coconut
½ cup creamy peanut butter
2 T. grated onion
2 T. peanut oil
1 T. brown sugar
2 t. lime juice
½ t. ground ginger

Pour boiling water over coconut in small bowl. Let stand 20 minutes; strain, reserving water. Coconut may be dried and used as a granish. In a medium bowl, combine reserved coconut water, peanut butter, onion, peanut oil, brown sugar, lime juice and ginger. Stir to mix well. (Add a little water if sauce is too thick.)

SUMMERTIME SALAD
(Makes 4 cups)

3 cups shredded red cabbage
1 cup grated carrots
1 cup seeded sliced cucumber
½ cup creamy peanut butter
½ cup mayonnaise
3 T. cider vinegar
2 T. orange juice
Romaine lettuce

Combine cabbage, carrots and cucumber. In a medium bowl, stir together peanut butter, mayonnaise, vinegar and orange juice. Add to cabbage mixture and toss well. Line large bowl with lettuce leaves. Spoon cabbage mixture into bowl. Chill until ready to serve.

All children win in this YMCA program

ALBANY — The YMCA is offering a sports program, "Every Kid Is a Winner," to assist children in physical and social development.

There will be exposure to athletics and encouragement and support on and off the field. Emphasis is on children exceeding their own goals, rather than surpassing the performance of others.

The program is for boys and girls ages 6 to 14 who are shy, withdrawn, timid, non-assertive, overly aggressive, easily frustrated, or too competitive.

It is also suitable for children who are lacking social skills necessary to get along with peers, under-developed in motor skills or coordination, or are full of energy and need a healthy recreational outlet.

Phone 525-1130 for information. The cost is $24 for four Saturday sessions beginning Sept. 17. Classes will be held at the Albany YMCA, 921 Kains St., Albany.

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

We strongly recommend the use of minor suit splinters in response to a major suit opening. This splinter is, of course, a game force that shows a singleton in the bid suit and support for partner's suit. Expert partnerships extend this to major suit responses in a manner that is too complicated for ordinary mortals.

North has decided slam interest with his 11 high-card points and singleton diamond, but only if South has the right hand. South doesn't have the right hand and signs off at four spades.

West opens the queen of clubs and careful play is needed to bring the game home. South wins in dummy and should lead a diamond immediately. West wins appropriately and continues clubs. South takes his king and ruffs a diamond. Back to his hand with a club ruff to ruff a second diamond.

At this stage South abandons any idea of a third diamond ruff. Somehow or other, these hands tend to collapse when greed takes over. South simply pulls trumps since he has one heart, two clubs, his own five trumps and two diamond ruffs in the bag for his 10 tricks.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Astrograph

If your birthday is Wednesday, Sept. 7:
Success will be assured this coming year if you stay in areas where you already have experience and expertise. Your rewards will be in proportion to your skills.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Don't let the fear of failure stop you from attempting things you'd like to do today. You'll think less of yourself if you don't try.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
It may be difficult for you to keep secrets today. There's a possibility you might take someone into your confidence that you shouldn't.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
Strive to be prudent in money matters today. Be sure you get real value for every dollar you spend. Small extravagances will add up to a sorry sum.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
Be sure to clarify your goals and objectives today so that you don't drift off course. Fuzzy targets will be your downfall.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Do not give unsolicited advice or suggestions to friends today. If your ideas don't work for them, you'll be held accountable.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
Instead of merely wishing that something you are involved in will change for the better, take positive measures today to improve conditions.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
The results will reflect your efforts today if you do things halfheartedly. Once you make a commitment, go all-out.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Today, don't pretend to be knowledgeable about things. You could be embarrassed if your assumed know-how is challenged and found lacking.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Surface appearances could be deceptive today, so be careful about taking individuals or situations at face value. Look beyond the facade.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
Your judgment in family matters today may be more accurate than that of your mate's. Reason things out amicably if you think he or she is wrong.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Unless you are very explicit in your instructions today, persons performing work or service for you may not do things as you request.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
This is not a good day to go on a shopping spree. There's a chance you'll pay more for merchandise than it's worth, or buy what you don't need.

We need help

The Times Journal is looking for a bright, cheerful person with nimble fingers and office experience.

The job: receptionist and typist for a small, busy office filled with hard working, delightful, charming (are we overdoing this?) people. Hours are 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

To apply: call 525-2644.

BART growth targeted

A key BART committee approved a policy on service extensions both inside and outside the three-county district.

The policy does not specifically address whether BART intends to build an extension to the San Francisco airport, but the wording agreed upon in committee satisfied both directors known to favor an extension and those who oppose it.

Four projects share the district's first priority rating:

- A north Concord/west Pittsburg extension.
- An Irvington/Warm Springs extension.
- A Castro Valley/Dublin extension.
- A San Francisco extension.

A footnote to the San Francisco listing says that the city "has a BART commitment for a northwest corridor extension or an equivalent project." But the three final words of that sentence — "within the city" — were dropped.

That means BART is committed to paying for an extension that would benefit San Francisco, but leaves it up to the city's residents to decide where the extension should go, according to Director Eugene Garfinkle.

County board boundaries

By BARBARA ERICKSON

New boundaries for seven seats on the county Board of Education have left two West County members within the same area, forcing an election battle if both men run again in 1985.

By a 5-2 vote the board adopted Plan 2, one of three proposed by the county Planning Department to equalize population between the electoral areas.

The two dissenters were Pinole resident Don Dyer of Area 2 and Rodeo resident David Girard of Area 3. Both now live within the new boundaries of Area 2.

The board vote also switched the numbers on two areas — making the former Area 3 into Area 7 and the former 7 into 3 — in order to keep board president Alice Johnson of Lafayette within her district, Area 7. The new boundaries would have placed her in 3.

A fourth board member, Mary Ann Hruska of Walnut Creek, who represents Area 5, has also been placed outside her area and into 3. She comes up for re-election in 1985. Mrs. Johnson will be running again this year.

The county school board has a wide variety of functions, including administration of certain special education programs, review of local school district budgets and teacher certification.

Girard said Thursday that the changes were "bizarre." He said he asked the board members to prove that they were not politically motivated by announcing publically that none of them would seek re-election.

Dyer, a former Richmond Unified administrator, said he opposed Plan 2 because it made it impossible to elect a minority representative to the board. Plan 1, he said, would have included fewer white hill neighborhoods in the Richmond area.

Before the board vote the areas were as follows:

- Area 1, represented by Ned Clyde, included Richmond, El Cerrito and Kensington and had a population of 77,310, according to the 1980 census.
- Area 2, represented by Dyer, included N[illegible] mond, Pinole, San Pablo and El Sobrante; popu[illegible] 768.
- Area 3, represented by Girard, included [illegible] Rodeo, Martinez and Pleasant Hill; population [illegible]

- Area 5, represented by Hruska, include[illegible] Creek, south Concord, and part of the San Ram[illegible] population 107,764.
- Area 6, represented by Charles Spear, [illegible] Brentwood, Antioch, Pittsburg, Knightsen, Oak[illegible] and Liberty; population 112,793.
- Area 7, represented by Johnson, inclu[illegible] fayette, Orinda, Moraga, Walnut Creek and Dan[illegible] ulation 110,750.

The board was required by law to adopt [illegible] daries by July 1 to equalize population accord[illegible] 1980 census. The population within the areas [illegible] vary by more than 4 percent.

The new areas are:

- Area 1, Richmond, North Richmond, El C[illegible] Kensington; population 92,790.
- Area 2, Pinole, San Pablo, El Sobrante, [illegible] and Rodeo; population 92,838.

Elections '83

Candidates file for EC ballot

Kirby the only candidates.

Lewis and Bacon both have received the endorsements of former mayors, Richard Bartke in Lewis' case and Ernest Del Simone and Kenneth Berndt in Bacon's.

Allen, first elected in 1978, served as mayor in 1981-82 and is seeking his second term of office after having his first extended by 19 months by the consolidation of last year's scheduled April election with this year's district voting.

The decision of Collins not to run and Spellmann's resignation assures the prospect of at least two new faces on the council.

Howe, whose wife, Anna, has served on the Planning Commission for the past five years, has been a member of the city's Board of Appeals since his appointment in 1981.

He was a member of the neighborhood group that successfully fought construction of the proposed Hazel Shirley Manor senior housing project at Moeser Lane and Pomona Avenue, which would have meant the displacement of the El Cerrito Pre-School.

He has been one of the more vocal members of the public at City Council meets, addressing himself to a wide range of issues.

"I want to make City Hall more receptive to the problems, complaints, ideas and solutions voiced by individuals throughout the community," he said. "People should feel welcome when they come to City Hall and know that the government belongs to them.

"Differences of opinion should be the normal, healthy state of affairs in local government," he continued. "City board and commission members especially should be encouraged to express their varied opinions. And the council should not hesitate to put important, city-wide issues to a vote of the people."

Howe felt the pre-school issue was one that should have been subjected to a referendum and expended considerable effort trying to bring such an election about.

He also campaigned against the municipal service tax when it was put to a vote last year and feels the council acted wrongly in passing the measure after it had been rejected by the electorate.

"In the long run," he said, "we must remember the voters' wishes. Planning our city budget so we can live within our means without the special tax will be a necessary challenge."

Howe questions the value of spending redevelopment funds to promote commercial development in the city.

"As a businessman," he said, "I am skeptical that this spending will succeed in raising tax revenues as planned. The community would benefit more if these funds were used for public projects of lasting value, such as street improvements, public facilities or senior housing."

Kirby, chairman of the Parks and Recreation Department, sees senior housing, revitalization of El Cerrito Plaza and recycling as the major issues facing the city.

On the controversial issue of recycling, he says: "The easiest thing to do would be to give it up, but that's not the way I see it. The city needs it and has an environmental responsibility to continue its recycling facility."

When he first announced his candidacy, Kirby stated he chose the two-year term because he wasn't running out of dissatisfaction with the present council. When incumbent Margaret Collins announced her intention to seek the two-year seat instead of running for re-election to a full four-year term, however, Kirby made up his mind to run anyway.

As things turned out, Collins decided not to run, expressing the feeling that there are "good candidates" for all three seats.

"I have differences of opinion with members of the present council," said Kirby, "but I feel confident that I can work with them by trying different approaches.

"The feeling in the community on the Chuck E. Cheese issue was that the council wasn't listening," he said. "I intend to be an 'accessible ear' on the council for all who wish to share their opinions and information. I want to encourage community involvement and participation in the activities of the community and in the decisions made on behalf of the community by the City Council.

Kirby, 33, a lifelong resident of the city, graduated from El Cerrito High School in 1968, a year later than the 35-year-old Howe. He obtained a bachelor of psychology degree and teaching credential from UC-Berkeley, where he is currently working toward a master's in education.

He has been teaching fifth and sixth grade students at El Monte Elementary School and now is on the faculty of Castro Elementary. He also teaches computer literacy and programming to children as an avocation and is a Richmond Unified School District delegate to the National Education Association.

Howe grew up in Kensington and earned a bachelor's degree in physics from Pomona College. Upon graduation from college, he immediately began a career in computer technology. After several years of developing his own computer firm in Kensington, he moved his business — Trigon Systems Corporations — to El Cerrito in 1979. The firm now employs five people.

Moving? Tell DMV

Motor vehicle owners can save themselves a lot of unnecessary trips to local DMV offices if they would remember to let DMV know their new address so that important mail can continue to flow to them.

They don't even need a form to do this, although forms are available. All they have to do is write to DMV giving:

- Name and driver's license number
- License plate numbers of all vehicles owned
- Old address and new address

DMV will make the notations on its records. The letter with this information should be sent to DMV headquarters in Sacramento to: Address Change, DMV HQ, 2415 First Avenue, Sacramento, CA 95818.
